Marriage and Divorce Ratio About 5 to 1

Washington, April 4 —(UP)—One marriage went on the rocks last year just about every time four other couples set out to show that two people can live cheaper than one.

The public health service estimates today there were 1,815,000 marriages in 1948 and 474,000 divorces. That's a decline in both marriages and divorces for the second straight year.

Divorces are taking the sharper drop. In 1947 there were 1,891,878 marriages and 474,000 divorces. In 1946, the peak year, there were more than 2,000,000 marriages compared to 610,000 divorces.

Both the marriage and divorce rates are tumbling. The divorce rate in 1948 was 2.6 per 1,000 population, compared to 3.3 in 1947, and 4.3 per 1,000.

The marriage rate in 1948 was 12.4 per 1,000, compared to 13.9 per 1,000 in 1947, and 16.4 per 1,000 in 1946.

The public health service said that data for the individual states are not yet available.

The total capital invested in the U.S. gas industry totalled nearly six billion dollars in 1948.

DOROTHY DIX

Husband's Success Endangered

Dear Miss Dix: I am a married woman in my early forties. My husband has just been promoted to a high position and it means that I will have to attend dinners and parties and come in contact with many new people. I have very little schooling, so my English is very bad. Also, I have a slight lisp in my speech, and it embarrasses me to meet people. And when I am with strangers my tongue seems completely tied. My brain won't work and I am a total loss.

I have to overcome these drawbacks as I love my husband and do not wish to embarrass him among his associates and new friends. Please tell me what to do about this.

ANXIOUS WIFE

Answer: Your problem is one that confronts a great many women who in their early youth married men who were clever and ambitious and who have made successes of themselves, while their wives have stayed out. It is one of the tragedies in this land of opportunity that so often a marriage is a failure because the wife did not keep up with her husband.

Nobody is to blame for it. The boy and girl who have had the same background and who have grown up together get married. The girl is happy and contented in home-making and baby-tending, but the boy has the fire of ambition in his soul and he begins climbing up until he leaves his wife behind him.

Heartbreaking Experience It is a heartbreaking experience for a wife to realize that she is no longer in her husband's class and if instead of sitting down and waiting and weeping over her misfortune she gets up and does something about it, she can turn her defeat into victory. Take your case.

Get a tutor who will polish up your English and your pronunciation. Put yourself in the hands of a dressmaker who knows her business. Learn how to dance, how to enter a room as if you owned the whole building and how to say polite nothings. No woman need be as unattractive as Nature made her if she is only willing to work at being glamorous, for which mercy thank Heaven.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have two children and a fine husband who is good to us in every way and makes us a good home, but I have been married before and I find that I still love my first husband and he loves me? What should I do? Should I stay with my present husband for the sake of my children, or should I do what my heart tells me to do?

Answer: I should say that a divorced woman with two children who has landed a second husband who is a good provider is wise to let well enough alone. Don't put too much stress on what your "heart tells you," for that organ is often a liar whose advice cannot be trusted. Consider how many people you know who thought they were in love and who found out when it was too late to do any good, that what they were suffering from was indigestion and not the grand passion.

But the curious thing about divorce is that so many husbands and wives who could not abide each other when they were married seem to fall in love with their ex-mates as soon as they are tied up with somebody else. Maybe the explanation is that they get the habit of swapping mates.

Dear Miss Dix: My trouble is that I don't seem able to be thrilled by anything or anyone. I have no ambition for any kind of work, as I feel that I would probably be a failure, so why bother? I am not interested in any man because I figure he is just another man. I have no boy friends, so no trouble on that score. I have never been interested in office work. Also, I have been rejected by a few men I have been in love with.

My parents are anxious for me to marry, but personally I don't care if I never get married. Oh, my goodness, Miss Dix, I am really afraid I am enjoying this state of mind. Could it be that I am scared?

Answer: Sounds to me as if your trouble is a very common disease, laziness. I know many people who are afflicted with that way, and it is an ailment that is practically incurable. For it takes a lot of spunk and determination and ambition to make any of us thrill over our jobs. You have to put plenty of pep in anything you do.

Clark University to Conduct Palmer Foundation Workshop

Worcester, Mass. — (Special) — Clark University announced today that it had accepted the invitation of the Palmer Foundation to conduct a workshop in character and citizenship education during the second term of its summer session from July 18 to August 26, 1949.

Purposes of the workshop will be to bring together teachers and other scholars interested in developing character and citizenship programs in Junior and senior high schools and to evolve a syllabus and guide for a course in this field in teacher training institutions.

Inasmuch as the workshop will serve as a clearing house for noteworthy plans now in operation, schools with outstanding programs are invited to submit descriptions, university officials said. Teachers in attendance will study these outstanding plans and devise practical programs for use in their own schools.

Dr. Vernon Jones, professor of educational psychology and chairman of the Department of Psychology and Education at Clark University, will direct the workshop. Dr. Clark Trow, professor of education at the University of Michigan, will be on the staff. Other experts will be called in on special problems.

Dr. Henry Lester Smith, dean emeritus of the School of Education, Indiana University, and director of research of the Palmer Foundation selected Clark University to conduct the workshop under the "Service is fine on this party line!"

Once upon a time (and it wasn't so long ago) there were some neighbors on a telephone party line. Everything was all right, except when anyone wanted to use the line it seemed someone else was always using it.

PLEASE, MY LITTLE GIRL'S SICK

One day Mrs. White, one of the neighbors on the line, had to call a doctor in a hurry. Someone was using the line. Mrs. White hesitated, then broke right in...

"Please," she said, "my little girl's sick. May I have the line to call a doctor?"

"Oh, yes," said the others, and hung right up.

A short time later, Mrs. White called the person she had interrupted. "I'm sorry I had to interrupt," she said, "but it was an emergency."

"That's perfectly all right," said the neighbor, "and I have an idea about this party-line business. Most of our calls aren't too important. Why don't we all agree when any one of us has an important call that we will ask for the line?"

"That's a wonderful idea," said Mrs. White.

So they all agreed, and service on that party line has been fine ever since.

ROGER THE LODGER

By Elizabeth R. Roberts COPYRIGHT BY GREENBERG, PUBLISHER DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

The Story: It's wartime and Mr. and Mrs. Roberts of Great Falls, Mont., have taken in lodgers. Their first, a star, Roger the Lodger, utilizes the Roberts home to win an officer training appointment. Then four construction engineers move into the maid's vacant apartment in the basement. Next Young Lieutenant Vickery and his bride Sally move into the guest room. With each day, Mrs. Roberts learns something new about lodgers.

What Sally loved was surprises, and since she had buldog blood, her failures didn't vanquish her enthusiasm; they only spurred her on to new efforts. The matter of the gelatin must have rankled, for a few days later she heard there was some in stock at the Commissary and she had Sonny bring home a package. I heard her humming in the kitchen and soon she came to tell me there was a lovely crown mold for me in the refrigerator, and it would be ready for our dinner that night. But it wasn't. It was just as loose as the last batch.

Sally looked so puzzled and discouraged that I asked her how she made it.

"Like you told me. I boiled the water. Hard. Then I mixed it. Even rinsed out the mold with cold water."

"Did you empty it before you poured in the mixture?"

"Oh, yes. But it wouldn't fill the mold so I had to add more water." She smiled happily at her ingenuity.

Sally thought washing was fun, and she begged me to show her how to run the machine. It seemed easier to give her instruction than to let her break loose alone. I showed her the rudiments of washing. But I must have overlooked explaining some things.

"When I put things in the water, the clothes come out yellow?"

"You must have had something yellow in, too."

"No. Just the sheets and pillow slips."

"Are you sure?"

"At this, Sally grew less sure of herself. "There were only two little pairs of socks," she confessed. "Yellow socks?" I suggested. She nodded her head.

The next week's washing took on a rosy hue, even though this time Sally had played it smart, so she told me, and knowing much, much better than to wash the socks with means, she had set them aside to do last.

"What did you do first?" I asked, knowing from the tint that something was wrong.

Bobcats Open Baseball Play

The Hope High School Bobcats open their baseball season Tuesday afternoon at the local high school diamond against the Prescott Curley Wolves at 3:45.

Interest in baseball has reached a new high this year at the high school, which is endorsed by the size of the squad. There are thirty candidates for the team. Starting for Hope will be Hazzard or Nix in the Box and Buddy Sutton behind the mound.

The schedule: April 5, Prescott here; April 8, DeQueen there; April 12, Gurdon here; April 15 open; April 19 North Heights (Texarkana) at Texarkana; April 22, Prescott at Prescott; April 29, Nashville at Nashville; May 3, North Heights here; May 11, Gurdon at Gurdon.

Yet I could hear a pounding and humming going on in the kitchen. I opened the door and immediately was set upon by a mad wrath. It was white, about the size of a small child. It flailed the air with its thin arms; jumped furiously from floor to table top.... It finally perched a moment. Heavens above! It was a turkey! A plucked turkey!

Now I've seen nudes, plain and fancy, bewitching and embarrassing, but I never saw one as naked as this one, or as hysterical. It began again its crazy jumping from floor to stove to floor, making a horrible gobbling noise in its throat. I backed out of the kitchen. I snatched the phone off the hook and tried to think of the number of the butcher of the fine department of the police department. I had a one-turkey riot on my hands.

While I stood at the phone, Sally bounced in. "Guess what!" she cried, beaming. "I have a surprise for you! A woman from the country brought in a turkey a great big one." Sally stretched her arms to show me how big. "She said you brought it at Christmas time but asked her to keep it on the porch until you sent for it. But she's going away. So she delivered it. The remaining birds alive to her customers who had ordered them held so they could kill them when they wanted them to eat." Bursting with pride, she concluded, "I did it for you. It's all ready to cook. I intended to be home before you returned, but I went out for a little air.... Phew, turkeys smell awful." She wrinkled up her nose prettily. "And you beat me to it."

"Sally," I pined her with my eye, my evil eye, "how did you make that turkey hold still while you plucked it?"

"I killed it," she said competently. "I didn't want to make a mess all over everything, so I chopped its head off. And I didn't think I could wring its neck. I'm not strong enough. I killed it a nice, quiet way. I chloroformed it."
